Chapter 266: The Realm of Dinosaurs

The Twelve Divine Beings, in their infinite wisdom and compassion, decided to restore life to creatures that had long vanished from existence. Among these were the majestic and awe-inspiring dinosaurs, whose time in the mortal world had ended eons ago. They were granted a sanctuary of their own—a realm as vast and boundless as the galaxies themselves.

1. The Dinosaur Realm: A Sanctuary Beyond Time

This special realm, created specifically for the dinosaurs, was an act of preservation and reverence for life.

Immense Size:
The realm spanned the size of countless galaxies, providing an abundance of space for all dinosaur species to thrive.

Self-Sustaining Ecosystem:
The environment was meticulously crafted to support every type of dinosaur, from towering herbivores to fearsome carnivores.

Lush Vegetation: Vast forests, endless plains, and fertile valleys for the herbivores.

Teeming Oceans: Deep seas and coral reefs for marine species.

Expansive Skies: Open skies for the flying dinosaurs.

---

2. A World of Diversity

Every dinosaur species was resurrected and returned to its natural glory:

Land Dinosaurs:

Herbivores like Brachiosaurus, Triceratops, and Ankylosaurus roamed the fertile lands.

Carnivores like Tyrannosaurus Rex, Velociraptor, and Spinosaurus ruled the food chain.

Marine Dinosaurs:

Giant creatures like Mosasaurus and Plesiosaurus swam in the deep oceans.

Smaller marine species thrived in coastal areas and shallow waters.

Flying Dinosaurs:

Pterosaurs, including the mighty Quetzalcoatlus, dominated the skies, soaring above the verdant landscapes.

Size Variance:
From the tiny Compsognathus to the massive Argentinosaurus, every scale of life was represented.

3. Isolation and Protection

The realm was sealed off from the rest of the multiverse, ensuring the safety and uninterrupted existence of the dinosaurs.

No Portals or Connections:
To prevent external interference, no portals linked the dinosaur realm to other realms. This isolation ensured that the species could thrive without fear of extinction or exploitation.

Eternal Balance:
The Twelve Divine Beings created a self-sustaining balance between predator and prey, ensuring harmony within the ecosystem.

---

4. Purpose of the Dinosaur Realm

The creation of this sanctuary served several purposes:

Preservation:
To prevent the extinction of these majestic creatures and honor their place in the grand design of life.

Study and Reverence:
Scholars and creators among the Twelve Divine Beings wished to study the beauty and complexity of ancient lifeforms.

A Living Legacy:
The realm stood as a testament to the Twelve Divine Beings' ability to nurture and protect all forms of life, even those long forgotten by the mortal world.

---

5. The Realm's Eternal Guardians

To ensure the stability and safety of the realm, the Twelve Divine Beings appointed ethereal guardians:

Primordial Spirits:
These spirits, shaped like dinosaurs themselves, oversaw the realm and maintained its balance.

Mana-Infused Flora and Fauna:
The environment itself was imbued with mana, enabling regeneration and sustaining life perpetually.

6. A New Beginning for an Ancient Legacy

The dinosaurs, now free from the fear of extinction, thrived in their new home. In this realm of endless beauty and boundless life, they lived as they had in the past, untouched by time or mortal interference.

Through this act of creation, the Twelve Divine Beings demonstrated their commitment to life in all its forms, giving even the most ancient and forgotten creatures a place to exist and flourish.
